SPOORE WINS MO. CONTEST

LOCAL BOY AMATEUR TYPEWRITING CHAMPION.

MARYVILLE TEAM WINS

Spoore, Harold Lee Yates, and Robert Porter Take Honors at Columbia.

William Spoore, Maryville High School senior won first place in the amateur division in the state typewriting contest held at Columbia yesterday. Mr. Spoore averaged eighty-three net words per minute which was about twenty-four words per minute faster than he wrote at the state contest last year.

William Spoore is the son of Warren Spoore of Maryville.

The Maryville High School typewriting team, consisting of Mr. Spoore, Robert Porter and Harold Lee Yates, won first place in the amateur division and was awarded a silver loving cup.

The team contest last year was won by Central High School, Kansas City.

Miss Mabel Marr is the commercial instructor at the local high school.

By virtue of their victories yesterday, Mr. Spoore and the Maryville team will be eligible to compete in the interstate contest to be held at Des Moines the latter part of this month. Winning teams and individuals from Missouri, Kansas, Iowa and Nebraska are eligible to compete in this contest. Expenses of the contestants must be paid by the schools represented.

A national typewriting contest will be held in New York in October. This is sponsored by J. M. Kimball, a New York business man, who has aided in standardizing typewriting contests throughout the United States. The national event is open to all state winners.

Two More Nodaway Schools Recognized

Champaign Is Put In First Class, Making Total of 40.—Lone Valley In Second Class.

Recognition of two more Nodaway County rural schools by the state department of education was announced today by Leslie G. Somerville, county superintendent, who has just returned from a meeting of the state association of county superintendents and a state health meeting, both held at Jefferson City.

Champaign School, in the Harmony consolidated district, now is an approved first class school, making the fortieth in the county. No other county represented at the county superintendents' meeting had a record to approach Nodaway County's, Mr. Somerville said.

The patrons of the Champaign district added the World Book to the school library and installed a ventilating system in order to meet the state requirements. Mrs. Vilas Porter is the teacher.

Lone Valley school, six miles west of Pickering, has been approved as second class. The patrons of this district also added the World Book, a ventilating system and three pictures. Lone Valley is the nineteenth second class school in the county, and Merl Britton is teacher.

"DICK" BAKER HEADS ASSN.

IS PRESIDENT INTERSTATE ORATORICAL LEAGUE.

STONE WINS FOURTH

Local College Orator Competes In Contest At MacComb, Ill., Last Night.

Richard Baker of Maryville was elected president of the Interstate Oratorical League, embracing colleges from five states: Missouri, Illinois, Wisconsin, Iowa, and Kansas, at the annual business meeting of the organization last night in MacComb, Ill. Baker was presented as the Missouri nominee by James R. Wallin, State Teachers College faculty member, who represented Missouri at the meeting.

John Paul Stone of Ridgeway, a student at the College represented Missouri and won fourth place in the interstate oratorical contest last night at MacComb. He spoke on the subject, "A World State." Elbert R. Harrington, the Iowa entry, was first in the contest, Elvin Churchill of Wisconsin was second, and Robert N. Bishop of Illinois was third.

First place in extemponaneous speaking went to Marshall Norsing of Wisconsin, Eileen R. Houston of Iowa was second, Lyle Oliver of the Springfield, Mo., State Teachers College was third, and Maurice Groff of Illinois was fourth.

The general opinion was that the contest this year was exceptional, according to Mr. Wallin, who said that Stone delivered his oration in a creditable manner which elicited approval from several judges for thought and general structure.

The contests next year will be held at Cedar Falls, Ia., State Teachers College. Baker will attend the conference and preside at the student business meeting.

This is the first time that a Missouri boy has been chosen president of the oratorical league. Baker, who is a senior at the College, was a member of the local intercollegiate debating team in 1924 and 1925, and this year represented the College in extemporaneous speaking. He won third place in the state contest this year at Cape Girardeau. The state contest next year will be held in Maryville. The Missouri president, to be chosen later, will also be a member of the College student body.

Mr. Wallin, Stone, and Miss LaVeta McClanahan, who were in MacComb last night, returned to Maryville at noon today.

LAST NIGHT'S CONCERT GOOD

GRADUATES AND ORCHESTRA APPEAR ON FESTIVAL PROGRAM.

TONIGHT TO BE OPEN

Conservatory Faculty and Children's Chorus To Give Sunday Night Program.

The good work continues.

Two graduates of the Conservatory of Music and the State Teachers College orchestra gave a concert last night as the second number of the Fifth Annual Music Festival program at the College, which was quite in line with the precedent set by the Maryville High School music clubs on the night previous.

It is the custom of the conservatory to introduce its graduates each year at the Music Festival. Last night, Mrs. Clytie Hackett Miller, pianist, and Miss Maude Kibbe, violinist, were presented. Both graduates reflected splendid training on the part of Thomas H. Annett and Miss Helen Dvorak, respectively.

The Liszt, Poldini, and MacDowell numbers played by Mrs. Miller were particularly suited to her temperment. They were well interpreted and played with a facile technique, the rythm and phrasing being unusually finished.

Miss Kibbe was particularly happy in her De Beriot and Vieuxtemps numbers. She rose to unusual technical heights in the rendition, the tone quality being vibrant and her whole performance culminating in a convincing interpretation of these difficult selections.

Both of the soloists were presented with beautiful flowers following their numbers.

The College orchestra appeared in three well-contrasted selections which showed unusual skill on the part of the organization. In the overture "Der Freischutz" by Von Weber, a series of pictures were clearly painted. So well was the work done that it was easy to see why the overture is called the "moving picture of music."

The orchestra showed unusual skill in its descriptive number, "In the Clock Store," by Orth. So well was the number given that the cuckoo clock, the alarm clock, the chimes, and even the whistling of the apprentice were as clearly portrayed as though they were solo parts, and yet the whole was woven into a beautiful music story which left the audience in a cheery mood.

In the last number on the program, suite ballet, "Sylvia," by Delibes, the three divisions were beautifully interpreted. That entitled "Pizzicate Polka" was unusually enjoyable.

Much of the praise for the success of the orchestral part of the concert must go to Harry O. Hickernell, the director. The precision with which he conducted his group, the response which it gave him, and the forcefulness of the whole were outstanding. Mr. Hickernell is a master of the technique of the baton. In the overtone, this piece of wood might well have been the brush of an artist, so well did the Conservatory teacher paint his pictures.

There will be no concert tonight. Tomorrow night the conservatory faculty and a chorus of sixty-five ward school children of Maryville will give the program, for which all Maryville churches will dismiss their evening services. There will, however, be a union service at the First Christian Church for those who do not attend the concert. Admission to this concert will be by cards, which may be obtained free of charge at Kuchs Bros., or at the College tomorrow night. Reserved seats will be held for season ticket holders until 8 o'clock. After that hour, all vacant seats will be throwa open to the public.

Miss Helen Dvorak, violinist; Bernhardt Bronson, baritone; Mr. Hickernell, trombonist; and Mr. Annett, pianist, will be the faculty soloists. Charles R. Gardner, head of the conservatory, will direct the chorus.

The program follows:

"But the Lord Is Mindful of His Own," from Saint Paul (Mendelssohn)—Children's Chorus.

Scripture reading.

Prayer.

The Sun Worshippers, Zuni Indian Melody—Children's Chorus.

Symphonie Espangnole (Lalo)—Miss Dvorak.

(a) Sonnet (Liszt); (b) Gnomenreigen (Liszt)—Mr. Annett.

Air—Arm, Arm, Ye Braves "Judas Maccabeaus" (Handel)—Mr. Bronson.

(a) O'er the Silv'ry Bay, Dalmatian Folk-Song.

(b) Trancadillo (Brown)—Children's Chorus.

The Patriot (Pryor) — Mr. Hickernell.

(a) The Great Advanture (Branscombe); (b) The Pauper's Drive (Homer)—Mr. Bronson.

(a) "Largo" (New World Symphony) (Dvorak-Kreisler); (b) Variationem (Tartini-Kreisler)—Miss Dvorak.

(a) Boating Song (Italian Folk Song) (b) When de Shadders Spread Aroun' (Dvorak)—Children's Chorus.

Benediction.

The audience is asked to refrain from applause.

LIQUOR LANDS BOYS IN JAIL

SIX FARM YOUTHS TRY "FLAMING," WITH DIRE RESULTS.

ARRESTED AT PARNELL

Sextet, All From Gentry County, Disturb Party at Farm Home Near Parnell.—Their First Offense.

A jug of liquor, a Ford car and six young boys.

A glorious time, at least they thought so for the short time it lasted, but today they are in jail and charged with possession of intoxicating liquor.

This describes briefly what took place last night when Jackson E. Dalby, 17 years old, his brother, Raymond Dalby, 19 years old; Roy Garrett, 19; Dale Wharton, 16, and his brother, Raymond, 18; and their cousin, Lester Wharton, 18, all Gentry County boys, started out in Dalby's Ford car with a jug of liquor. The boys declared they secured the liquor in Gentry County. They took a drive over into Nodaway County and stopped at the home of Andrew Smith, south and west of Parnell, where a party was going on. They were uninvited and made so much disturbance that Mr. Smith called Sheriff Lowell Campbell.

Sheriff Campbell accompanied by Deputy Sheriffs Harve England, and Lloyd B. Heifner, left Maryville and went to the Smith home. By that time the boys had left the Smith home and had gone to Parnell, where they were arrested. Deputy Sheriff John Surplus of Parnell assisted the officers here in making these arrests. They were brought to Maryville and locked up in jail.

An investigation made by George Pat Wright, prosecuting attorney, revealed that the boys have never been in trouble before and are hard working farmer boys.

View Inquest Held Over John Farrens

C. Wallis, coroner, who held a view inquest yesterday. The accident happened yesterday, the body being found about 1 o'clock by a neighbor boy, Verlin Koger.

Mr. Farrens was unmarried. He was 67 years old. A brother, Thomas Farrens, living in Wyoming, is on his way to attend the funeral. Other relatives will be unable to attend the funeral.

FIFTH STREET PAVING OPEN

RAPID PROGRESS IS MADE ON OTHER PROJECTS.

CEMENT SUPPLY GONE

Work Is Halted Late Yesterday on Walnut, Near Fourth.—Sentiment Favors Paving.

With favorable weather, rapid progress has been made this week in the paving of Walnut street by the Cook-O'-Brien Construction Co. Nearing Third street, the work was halted late yesterday by a shortage of cement.

The new paving of Fifth street, between Buchanan and Muiberry streets, was opened to traffic today. There is continuous paving from Market street to the Wabash freight depot.

On Walnut, concrete has been laid for the three blocks at the south end and from Seventh to Fourth streets. These sections, however, have not been opened.

Work on the boulevard project near the Wabash freight station, delayed until after Fifth street could be opened, will be started as soon as the city completes installation of a water main.

The only other paving now authorized is on Davis street, extending three blocks south from First street. At the regular monthly meeting of the City Council tonight, a resolution probably will be passed for the paving of alley running from First to Second street, between Main and Buchanan.

Although no other projects have reached the stage where they have been submitted to the council, there is much favorable sentiment for more paving and re-surfacing. One movement launched recently asks for the paving of Davis street between First and Third streets. These two streets now have no paved connection east of Market street. Physicians and other visitors to St. Francis Hospital have called attention frequently to such a need. In muddy weather it is necessary now for cars to turn around and go back on first street, with consequent interruption and congestion of traffic.

Washington, May 1.—The American debt commission today settled another minor European war debt. An agreement was reached for the funding of the Jugo-Slav debt of approximately sixty-seven million dollars, representing principal and accrued interest.

New Charge Filed Against R. Blazier

Man Delivered To Door Of Jail By Object Of His Wild Pursuit Waives Preliminary Hearing.

A new charge of operating a motor car while intoxicated has been placed against Roscoe Blazier, now serving a one-year ajil sentence as the result of conviction on a similar charge.

Blazier was paroled to officials of Holt County, that he might answer charges there, but he was rearrested here several days ago when he pursued his wife and a companion, Merril Coffey, to Maryville from the home of Blazier's father, west of town.

On Market street, Blazier's car smashed into and became entangled with the one he was pursuing, whereupon Coffey continued on to the county jail, dragging Blazier and his car behind him.

Blazier's parole was revoked, and he has been confined in jail since. In the justice court of W. L. Johnson, he waived preliminary hearing on the new charge and was bound over to the first day of Circuit Court.

Suit Against Paper Dismissed by Judge

Judge Otis Hungate Orders Davis Libel Suit Against Kansas City Journal-Post Removed.

Topeka, Kan., May 1.—The five-million-dollar libel suit of former governor Jonatham M. Davis of Kansas against the Kansas City Journal-Post in which he charged malicious libel by the newspaper in connection with his recent trial on charges of selling pardons was ordered removed today by Judge Otis Hungate before whom the alleged bribe case was heard. The judge, this morning, issued an order following arguments by attorneys for the newspaper a week ago.

The former governor was found not guilty together with his son in the case of Fred Pollman, LaCygne banker, who, it was charged, paid $1,250 for a pardon to Russell Davis, the former governor's son.

JARDINE HITS HAUGEN BILL

FARMER MUST CURE OWN ILLS, SAYS SECRETARY.

FAVORS TINCHER BILL

Co-Operation, Rather Than Government Subsidy, Is Solution, He Tells Farmers Union.

Pomona, Fla., May 1.—The American farmer was told today by Secretary of Agriculture Jardine that the only lasting solution of his problem rested in his own hands.

Speaking before the Farmers Union, Jardine declared that co-operation, rather than a government subsidy, special taxes or "dumping" programs, offered agriculture the only possible cure for its present ailment.

"I am convinced," said Jardine, "that any assistance, to be of maximum value, must be such as can be taken advantage of by farmers working together through their own organization on their own problems."

Jardine's speech was regarded as a direct slap at the Haugen bill, providing a 375-million-dollar fund for the stabilization of crop prices, without which the farm bloc in Congress has threatened not to adjourn.

He strongly defended the administration's Tincher bill, drafted under his direction, which would provide a hundred-million-dollar revolving fund which would aid co-operatives in merchandizing their products.

"This legislation," said Jardine, "would, in my judgment, pave the way for a better stabilization of prices that farmers have ever enjoyed. It opens up an opportunity to check most of the fluctuations and gluts which upset the market so disastrously. It offers a long step forward in our economic progress."

BRITAIN FACE A NEW CRISIS

ALL UNION WORKERS MAY BE CALLED OUT.

HITS BALDWIN RULE

Lloyd George Says Present Government "Dallied" In Attempting To SEettle Coal Controversy.

Cambridge, May 1.—Lloyd George today laid down the blame for Britain's great crisis at the door of the Baldwin government.

"The government has dallied in attempting to settle this question," declared Lloyd George. "The strike is deplorable because it is unnecessary."

London, May 1.—One million British mine workers are on strike today.

The trades union congress has called a general sympathetic strike of four million workers effective Monday at midnight.

The government has replied by invoking the employers' power act which virtually puts Great Britain under martial law.

The industrial dispute, which boiled over in a ferment of activity today, probably is the greatest in modern times. A great industrial and manufacturing country which cannot feed itself and to whose cities special trains carry each day what is to be consumed before sundown is confronted with a condition which would halt those trains, turn off the electricity which lights its homes and streets and in general creat a situation unprecedented in modern peace-time history.

Kign George V, Britain's war time monarch, today proclaimed into existence a special provision for the protection of the country. The only limit to Premier Baldwin under this act is that he cannot declare industrial conscription nor conscription om military service.

Britain has been ruled for a fortnight by fears that even a mine strike would be so disastrous that surely something would be done to avert it. Instead, the mine strike began and now the five million union members are threatening a general sympathetic strike. The labor strategy is obvious. Labor has chosen to make an issue of the mine dispute wherein the owners' position admittedly is weakened by the fact that almost incalculable sums have been paid in royalties to owners of vast non-bearing areas.

BUSINESS WITH RUSSIA

Maxim Litvinoff, assistant commissar of foreign affairs at Moscow, thinks friendly relations may be patched up with the United States. Reports from America, he tells his red brethren, "point to a new trend in responsible business circles respecting Soviet Russia."

This may be true. There is an unexpected amount of friendliness for the Russian Soviet government shown by American business men. Much as they deplore Communism, they are eager to sell anything to the Communists that the latter can pay for.

With the American government, Litvinoff admits, there are still difficulties. But governmental approval, he intimates, hangs more on finances than political principles. Official recognition, he thinks, can be obtained if Soviet Russia will agree to pay the debts of the Kerensky regime. And his government might do that.

Only—and here is the Bolshevist joker—America would have to consider "the principle of Russian counter claims." That is to say, if the Soviet gentlemen paid us back what we lent Kerensky's republic before they overthrew it, we would be expected to pay damages for helping Kerensky.

The upshot would be that we owed Russia recognition and Russia owed us nothing.

STERN JUSTICE

"Scotty" Campbell, aged 25, who was serving a term of 25 to 60 years for robbery in Philadelphia, didn't like the prospect, and escaped from the penitentiary a year ago by hiding in a load of hot ashes.

Such a painful get-away might almost seem to merit freedom. But not so. "Scotty," recaptured the other day in Los Angeles, is sent back to the penitentiary to serve 50 to 120 years, under stricter guardianship than before.

Who says America is easy on criminals? Men are being hanged and electrocuted and given appalling sentences every day now. The arm of justice, strengthened at last, reaches far, and its fists hit hard.

French duels are getting really tough. They're fighting 'em now with boxing gloves.

The Missouri State University cost the taxpayers 37.3 cents per capita for all purposes for 1925, according to figures compiled by that institution. The whole amount was $1,304,400.49. The state population, according to the last estimate by the Census Bureau was $3,498,183.

The mayor of Chicago says that city has been cleaned up. In view of what took place the other day it would seem to be time for somebody to go to work on Cook county. As long as gangsters can go out on the streets with machine guns and shoot up the town and murder policemen, prosecuting attorneys and others, that section isn't even civilized, much less "cleaned up."

An agreement has been reached between the American Debt Commission and the French Government and the French debt will be settled. After giving Italy a couple of billions, there is no reason for quibbling with other nations and this almost cleans the slate.

The remaining countries that have not yet funded their debt are Russia and a few of the smaller countries who owe comparatively small amounts. France was our second largest debtor, only England having a larger indebtedness. The settlement of the French debt will end a long controversy and be a good thing for the business relations between the countries and should help to stabilize the finances of France.

We were shown a curosity last Sunday by George Washburne and George W. Jackson of Hopkins township. The curiosity alluded to it a large grub worm with the root of a weed growing out of it. The weed sprout is some two inches long. It was under the surface of the ground some six or seven inches and was plowed up by them. Isn't it queer to have weeds growing out of grub worms?

About the handsomest thing we have seen lately is the Phaeton of Fred Hastings, Esq., turned out by Barmann and Gall of this city. We have frequently in the columns alluded to the importance of home manufacturers and the necessity of giving them a proper support. There is no longer any need of our citizens going East to buy their carriages or light wagons when they can buy a better article at lower figures at home. The work of Barmann and Gall speaks its own praise and is unsurpassed by that of eastern cities for elegance of design, durability, or finish. We hope to see our Nodaway County people, who need a carriage or light wagon go in the future to these gentlemen and look at and price their work, and if the only do this we have no fear of the result—they will leave their order.

Full Life Brings Its Truly Great Reward

John Hays Hammond, at 71, Is One of Country's Youngest Men—Admits He Worries Some.

By Charles P. Stewart
NEA Service Writer.

"I eat what I like. I drink what I like. I also worry."

—John Hays Hammond, in response to a reporter's question recently, as to what makes him, at 71, about the youngest old man anybody ever saw.

Washington.—If John Hays Hammond worries, it's safe to say it's because he's peculiarly so constituted that he enjoys worrying and worries voluntarily, for the fun of it, thereby helping to keep himself young.

The impression I got, from a series of talks I had with him some time ago, is that he has his worries under admirable control.

He eats what he likes but I don't suppose he eats too much. Having a thirst to slake, he slakes it, but I've no idea he's excessive in his addiction to lemonade or sarsaparilla or pop, or whatever it is he drinks. Just so with worry. I'll bet he does exactly enough of it to get the right kick, and no more.

Another impression I get is that John Hays Hammond has come about as near to having led an ideal life as anybody I ever saw, and that it's fully as ideal now, even in rather old age, counting it in years, as ever it was.

I mean ideal in a strictly masculine, hard-hitting, satisfying sense—a full life, a productive one, interesting, colorful throughout—the kind of life a man can say he really has lived.

During the first three months of 1926 Dodge Brothers, Inc., built and sold more motor vehicles than any other manufacturer in the world, except Ford and Chevrolet.

71,189 retail deliveries were made by Dodge Brothers Dealers in the United States and Canada between January second and April third. This represents a gain of 37 per cent over the same period last year and 69 per cent over the first quarter of 1924!

Third largest in the world! And sales CONTINUING to mount week after week to new record breaking levels.

In fact, during the week ending April 24th retail sales reached the remarkable total of 9,566—the greatest single week in Dodge Brothers history!

These figures are all the more significant when you realize that the gain of the industry as a whole over last year is only 12 per cent.

There could be no more convincing evidence that today's product is regarded as better than ever before and that the present prices make it the most impressive value Dodge Brothers have ever offered.

The lost world, a world peopled by primitive man—by gigantic dinosaurs ranging in size from six to fifteen elephants, flying reptiles as big as aeroplanes. You see them on the screen just as they are in flesh and blood.

A most amazing story of two lovers of the modern world, trapped with a band of explorers in this strange land, and forced to battle for their lives against these terrifying monsters.

Missouri Writers Guild, "An Earnest Band," Is Eleven Years Old This Week

Compiled by the State Historical Society of Missouri, Columbia. Floyd C. Shoemaker, Secretary.

The Missouri Writers Guild was founded eleven years ago this week.

Dean Walter Williams of the University of Missouri invited the writers of the state to meet as part of the annual Journalism Week in 1915. The Guild was organized on May 4, and, like many another innovation sponsored by Dean Williams, it has flourished.

William H. Hamby of Chillicothe was the organizer and first president. J. Beckenridge Ellis of Plattsburg and Mrs. Emily Newell Blair of Carthage were the first vice-presidents. Floyd C. Shoemaker of Columbia was secretary-treasurer for 1915-19.

Mrs. Mary Blake Woodson of Kansas City was president during the past year, and P. Caspar Harvey of Liberty, secretary-treasurer.

The Guild holds two meetings a year, one on the first day of Journalism Week, usually held in May when the locust trees bloom in Columbia, the other a week's outing which, according to the by-laws, must be "at some picturesque spot."

The order of the day in Columbia is usually addresses, round-table discussions, and a banquet. The program is arranged to interest many kinds of writers.

Composers, playwrights, scenario writers, historians, technical writers, cartoonists, humorists, critics, and editors are among the speakers, as well as:

Novelists, such as John Breckenridge Ellis, author of "Fran," Jay William Hudson, author of "Abbe Pierre," Louis Dodge, Homer Croy, and Temple Bailey.

Poets, such as Mabel Hillyer Eastman, Blanche Sage Hazeltine, Frank Markward, Myrtle Jamison Trachsel, and Velma West Sykes.

And a host of short story, magazine article, and children's story writers, including Mary Blake Woodson, Catha Wells, James W. Earp, Courtney Ryley Cooper, Arthur E. Killick, Catherine Cramner, Elizabeth P. Millbank, Hugh Fox Grinstead, and Louise Hauck.

Royal good humor pervades the fall outings. When the Guild gets together, a large part of the wit and talent of Missouri, the state of Mark Twain and Eugene Field, is there.

The outings have been held on Salt River, on Roaring River, at Gasconv, in Camden County, at Pertle Springs, at Lake Taneycomb, etc. Not only must the places visited be picturesque as to scenery and literary or historical suggestions, but also fish and fried chicken must abound.

The Guild was incorporated in 1925.

Under the new by-laws, no provision is made for associate membership, a former feature based on the desires to write.

Any Missourian is eligible to membership "who has had a book published on a royalty basis, or has sold three articles, stories, or poems, or one serial to a magazine of national circulation, or has written a play that has been produced by a regular theatrical company, or has sold three photodramas for which the author has received credit on the screen."

Persons not eligible under these provisions may be admitted by the board of directors.

The honorary members of the Guild are Winston Churchill, Rupert Hughes, Fannie Hurst, Sara Teasdale, and Augustus Thomas—all native born Missourians.

The purpose of the organization is "to bring into closer relationship the writers of the state for mutual inspiration, information, and amusement; and from time to time entertain distinguished writers and editors from other states." The Guild is purely social and fraternal. As High Fox Grinstead former president describes it:

"The Missouri Writers Guild is not a mutual admiration society nor is it a clan of literary highbrows, but rather a little band of earnest workers ever striving toward success."

Yet, its long list of members hardly merits the diminutive "little," for the Missouri Writers Guild is representative of the State's roll of authors. And for decades, Missouri has achieved natural rank and fame through her men and women of letters.

The Rev. J. T. Alsup will deliver the baccalaureate sermon to Ravenwood seniors tomorrow night.

START DRIVE FOR PROGRAM

ADMINISTRATION FORCES FEAR LEGISLATIVE JAM.

FRENCH DEBT WAITS

Muscle Shoals Offer From Southern Concern Must Also Be Acted Upon—Calendar Over-Crowded.

Washington, May 1.—With the scheduled adjournment of Congress one month away, administration leaders today began a drive to clean up the program in an effort to avert a traffic legislative jam in the closing days of the present session.

In the face of an already overcrowded calendar, Republican managers were confronted with the task of securing the approval of the French war debt settlement and the proposal to lease the 150-million-dollar Muscle Shoals project to the Associated Companies of the South.

The program of eleven other bills included the Watson-Parker railroad mediation bill and the much-discussed farm relief legislation which has been given right-of-way in the Senate by the Republican steering committee.

Unless Congress makes a tremendous spurt in handling legislation, it became apparent today the program either will be abandoned or consideration of the French debt settlement and the Muscle Shoals project postponed until the next session.

In the opinion of observers, both the program and other bills cannot be considered and acted upon if Congress adjourns June 1.

Tariff Commission Again Under Fire

Edward W. Costigan Tells Senate Committee Body Has Favored Special Interests In Investigations.

Washington, May 1.—Private interests have dictated the attitude of the majority of the tariff commission in past investigations, Edward W. Costigan, member, told the Senate investigating committee today.

Politics, Costigan declared, has spread to members of the commission's staff of experts until "exceptional differences of opinion have been the result all the way through." Special favors, he said, have been given certain interests by members.

The advisory board's report on the proposed woven fabrics wool investigation in 1923 was described as "curious" by Costigan.

Commercial Use of Corn In U. S. Big

Washington, May 1 (United Press)—Commercial use of corn—including moonshining—absorbs about 225,000,000 bushels of the American corn crop annually.

The majority of the corn is ground in commercial mills, the agriculture department said. Latest figures of corn used in distilling and fermenting showed 3,626,000 bushels absorbed in 1925. No record was available of the amount used for moonshining.

STILL SELLING AUTO LICENSES

TAGS TO REMAIN ON SALE UNTIL DECEMBER 1.

REPORT IS COMPILED

More Than 5,460 Tags Are Sold Since February 1, According To D. A. Caldwell of C. of C.

More than 5,460 state automobile licenses have been sold at the Chamber of Commerce office since February 1, according to a report made today by D. A. Caldwell, secretary of distribution.

Of this number all but 422 licenses have been for pleasure vehicles.

Licenses will contin on sale at the Chamber of Commerce office here until December 1, becoming half price August 1 and quarter price November 1.

Seven hundred and ninety-four applications for certificates of title have been received, of which two hundred and seventy-nine were on new cars and the balance for used cars. Twenty-nine applications for transfer of license plates from one car to another have been received and twenty-five persons have applied for duplicate certificates of title, because of having lost or misplaced the original title.

Thirty-one applications for chauffeurs' license and twenty applications for operators' licenses have been received since February 1, the report shows. Only three motorcycles are listed.

Eight persons have lost one of their license plates and have made application for another.

As the season progresses, the percentage of license sales to persons outside of Nodaway County seems to increase, having risen from 15 per cent during February and March to more than 20 per cent during the last month. Undoubtedly, this is due to the roads being better and the roads more favorable.

During the last month, 242 state automobile licenses were sold. During the same period, 114 applications for certificates of title were received.

A new state road map is given to every purchaser of a license.

"Nearly all car owners appreciate these maps, although some difficulty is experienced in getting some owners to accept them," Mr. Caldwell said.

Among the Schools of Nodaway County

ATTACKS LAW ON STATE AID

SOMERVILLE STARTS MOVE TO HAVE PRESENT ONE REPEALED

WANTS OLD RESTORED

Changing of Basis Has Swept Away Funds of Many Consolidated Districts, He Declares.

Charging the Fifty-Third General Assembly with a "breach of faith," Leslie G. Somerville, Nodaway County superintendent of schools, has begun a campaign to restore the law providing $25 state aid per square mile for consolidated school districts, which the last assembly repealed.

Mr. Somerville's contention was set forth this week in Wednesday's Kansas City Times, which also carried his picture.

He has written letters to every county superintendent and to superintendents and school board principals of all consolidated districts north of the Missouri river. He declares the effect of the repeal of the old law and the substitution of a new provision has been to "sweep away" the funds of practically every consolidated district in the northern part of the state. Pointing out that it will soon be time to select candidates for the General Assembly, he calls upon "workers in rural education" to exert themselves to see that the candidates are "men who have a genuine interest in the progress of rural education."

The letter which Mr. Somerville sent to other school leaders follows:

"During the session of the 53rd General Assembly, Section 11264 of the Revised Statutes of Missouri of 1919 was repealed and a new section to be known as section 11264 was enacted instead. These sections relate to the method of opportioning state aid to consolidated school districts. The former section granted $25.00 state aid per square mile area of the consolidated district, while the new section bases the allotment of state aid on daily average attendance and rate of levy. In either section the district must maintain an approved high school of at least the third class.

"Specifically this new section reads as follows: 'Whenever any consolidated school district votes 100 cents on the $100 assessed valaution for teachers and incidental purposes and the proceeds of said tax together with the estimated income from county, township and state funds and cash on hand amount to less than $50 per pupil in average daily attendance during the preceding year for teachers and incidental expenses, the state superintendent of schools shall each year before apportioning the public school fund set aside and apportion to each such district a sum sufficient to enable such district to expend $50 per year per child in average daily attendance.

" 'Provided, that when any consolidated school district votes 65 cents on the $100 assessed valuation for teachers and incidental purposes and the proceeds of such tax together with the estimated income from county, township and state fund and cash on hand amounts to less than $40 per pupil in average daily attendance during the preceding year for teachers and incidental expenses, the state superintendent of schools shall each year before apportioning the public school fund set aside and apportion to each such district a sum sufficient to enable said district to expend $40 per pear per child in average daily attendance.'

"In the first place, such a change is a breach of faith because the people of these communities had banded themselves together with the understanding that they would receive state aid to assist in providing high school advantages to their children without voting a tax that would prove burdensome to their community.

"In the second place, since the repeal of this law many of the consolidated districts, especially of north Missouri, have lost this state aid and as a result have been seriously embarrassed in their school program for the present year, and next year these communities will be obliged to increase the tax levy to overcome this loss or else reduce their present school advantages.

"You will recall that this change in the law was made without any warning to county superintendents or any member of the communities where these consolidated schools are maintained; therefore, we were given no opportunity to oppose such change.

"The time will soon arrive when we will be selecting candidates to represent us in the next General Assembly, and I believe that we as workers in rural education should exert ourselves to see that the candidates are men who have a genuine interest in the progress of rural education and who will do all in their power to secure the repeal of this unfair statute and the reinstatement of the old statute under which the rural consolidated schools were formed."

What Shall Our Schools Teach?

By William McAndrew
Superintendent of Schools, Chicago.

The American public schools were proposed by the founders of the republic for the purpose of continuing it on the principles laid down: union, justice, domestic tranquility, common defense, general welfare. These schools are supported by taxes laid upon every American whether he has children or not. The schools shall therefore conduct such daily exercises as promote union, justice, tranquility, defense and general welfare. These purposes determine everything in the course of study.

M. H. S. HI-Y CLUB ELECTS

WALTER ALLEN IS CHOSEN PRESIDENT FOR 1926-27.

GOOD YEAR'S RECORD

Local Organization One of State Leaders—May Bring Older Boys' Conference Here Next Year.

At a meeting of the Hi-Y Club of the Maryville High School late yesterday afternoon the nominating committee for officers for the 1926-27 period submitted two sets of nominations and the club elected a president, vice-president, secretary and treasurer. Formal installation of officers will be held Wednesday, May 12.

Walter Allen was elected to serve as president of the Hi-Y organization during his senior year. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Allen. Erman Barrett, who will be an advanced junior, was the choice for vice-president. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ellwood Barrett.

Rarroll Boeppler was elected as secretary and Carl LeRoy Fisher was the choice for treasurer.

The other nominees were Ben Thompson for president and Homer Warner, vice-president. Boeppler and Fisher were placed on both sets of nominees.

The Hi-Y Board this past year was made up of L. L. St. Clair, chairman; Dr. C. C. James and Forrest Gillam. A new board will be chosen next week after a conference with the State boys work secretary, who comes to Maryville at that time to speak at the Hi-Y graduation of senior members.

The outgoing officers of the organization are Lawrence Wray, president; Harold Lee Yates, secretary, and Walter Allen treasurer. George Andrews, who is now in Los Angeles, was president last fall but resigned upon leaving school, and his place was filled by Lawrence Wray who was vice-president at the time.

The Hi-Y Club here has become one of the leading clubs of the state. Last November it sponsored successfully a Father and Son banquet. It sent at its own expense eight boys and a delegation leader to Chillicothe to the Older Boys Conference and was instrumental in leading the various churches to increase the number of other boys to fifteen. It now is seeking to bring the Older Boys Conference to Maryville next fall.

The local organization was the first to graduate its outgoing members from the club at the same time they are graduated from high school. Diplomas and New Testaments are presented to each graduate. This plan is now being practiced in one of the St. Louis high schools and interest in it is being taken in other Hi-Y Clubs.

Throughout the year the organization has met each week to discuss the problems of a greater boyhood.

Officers Are Chosen by Graham P.-T. A.

Mrs. Dale Goodpasture has been elected president of the Graham Parent-Teacher Association. Mrs. Ruby Mowry was chosen as vice-president, Mrs. Maude Flemming as secretary and Mrs. Grace Scott as treasurer. A chairman of committees will be announced later.

The regular meeting of the P.-T. A. was held at the Graham school and a good program was given by the rural schools.

M. H. S. Dramatics Club Boasts Good Record for Term

The Dramatics Club of Maryville High School has not only proved itself best in high school dramatics by virtue of victory at the State Teachers College last week but has achieved some silent victories as well. During the past school year they have given seven outstanding plays in public assembly and seven other plays in weekly meetings of the club.

Miss Augusta Quell, coach in dramatics, has successfully carried through a long needed schedule of dramatic work. She has been assisted by various student directors.

The plays given in assembly were "The Pot Boiler," "Poor Maddelena," "At The Sign of The Boar's Head," "Vengeance Height," "Solemn Pride," "The Florist Shop" and "Never—the—Less."

The plays given in club meetings were "Enter The Hero," "Playing With Fire," "The Touchstone," "The Silver Lining," "Finders—Keepers," "Spreading The News," "Manikin—Manikin" and "Cinderella Married," which was used as the contest play that won for Maryville High School a silver cup in dramatics.

The club in a meeting yesterday was entertained with a clever feature, a dramatization of "Lord Nullun's Daughter" in which Carl King, Paris Phipps and Jack Gray played the leading parts. This was followed by a reading by Miss Ruth Kramer.

In celebration of the contest play victory the youthful followers of the drama will have a picnic Wednesday of next week. At the next meeting of the club the members will be entertained with a musical program.

TO VOTE ON BONDS AGAIN

$85,000 ISSUE AT SKIDMORE TO BE RE-SUBMITTED.

TAX RATE 87 CENTS

Board Declares Cost Would Not Be Excessive and Building No More Than Adequate.

A proposal to issue $85,000 in bonds for the erection of a new school building will be submitted to the voters of he Skidmore consolidated district for he second time on May 8. At its first submission, a few weeks ago, the measure was defeated by a narrow margin.

A statement by the board of education points out that the district has 365 pupils living in it and that the proposed building is not too large. It warns that if the district fails to meet he requirements as laid down by the tate department of education, the high school seniors for next year will be unable to complete their high school course at home. The class includes:

Dorothy Winger, Bertha Linville, Blanch Brown, Harlan Browa, Ruth Money, Flora Nichols, Opal Winger, Francis Linville, Kenneth Cokely, Maggie Lowrance, Eleanor Montgomery, Rebekah Botkin, Mildred Myers, David Suetterlin, William Ruddell, Helena Goslee, Helen O'Riley, Glenn Shipps, Virginia Updyke, Vernie Reed, Georgia Ashbrook, and Marjorie Peoples.

"These children," says the board, "might possibly be educated in neighboring high schools at an expense of $300.00 each. That would about meet the first year interest and bond payment on a new building. We have one hundred high school pupils and at the above rate it would take $30,000.00 a year to educate, which amount would pay for bond issue and interest in less than five years.

"Some of you have been told that your farm rent would be raised $1.25 an acre if this bond issue carries. Twenty cents an acre will pay the tax.

"The hay from one acre of alfalfa each year will pay the land tax on one hundred sixty acres of land.

"The following rates for school purposes are paid by our neighboring towns:

"Graham, $1; Quitman, 85c; Fairfax, $1; Burlington Junction, $1; Hopkins, $1; Pickering, $1; Barnard, $1; Oregon, $1.05; Maryville, $1; Maitland, $1.40.

"Should the bond issue carry, for this district the tax rate would only be a little over 87c (87.4c)."

The proposed plan would put an auditorium and gymnasium on the basement floor, together with four high school study rooms, lavatories, and dressing rooms. The heating plant and coal bins will be under the stage. There are also concrete elevated steps across the south side, large enough for folding chairs and will seat 300. The auditorium will seat about 400.

The first floor takes care of the six grades with lavatories for the primary grade separate from the others. The closets and wardrobes are inside of the rooms instead of being out in the hall.

The second floor is devoted exclusively for high school purposes, including the study hall, library, lavatories, superintendent's office and reception room.

The corridors are 10 feet wide and run the full length of the building. They will be ventilated and arranged so that they will receive good light. The class and study rooms are also arranged that light will shine over the left shoulder of the pupils, which is one of the requirements of the State Department.

THESE WOMEN

by MALCOLM DUART

©1926 BY NEA SERVICE, INC.

BEGIN HERE TODAY.

HARRY MORTON, unmarried, middle-aged, wealthy, very attractive to women, divides his time between his home in Springfield and his apartment in Kansas City. His associates know nothing of his past, or what his real business is.

AUDREY MORTON, his adopted daughter, is wildly in love with him. He tries to divert her attention to JOHN PARRISH, his methodical young secretary. He lets her see him with gay women, including NONA, a Kansas City stage girl, who also is deeply in love with him.

Audrey decides to enter stage life, to learn how stage girls manage to attract Morton. Parrish reports that she has hired a male dancer to be partner in her act. Morton arranges with Nona to leave her own place to be Audrey's teammate. A girl, who with her own male dance partner has long been out of work, is proposed for Nona's place. Morton sees Nona's manager in the girl's behalf, and is told that the male member of her team has tried to get $100 advance money from the producer.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XXVII.

"I've seen that fellow," Morton laughed. "He tried to blackmail me, once. Did you give him any money?"

She stood twisting a ring upon her finger as he sank into his chair.

"I did—not," jerked the manager. "I'm too old in this game to be passing out any money I don't have to. Except, of course, sometimes when my people are out of luck. Is his partner the girl you wanted to see me about?"

Without being invited, Morton helped himself to a chair, and told the girl's story—how it happened that Nona was leaving the company, why the other girl was sorely in need of work, something about Audrey.

The producer was interested. "Poor little girl!" he said, commiseratingly "There's lots of hard luck in this profession, isn't there? But she's too skinny."

Morton's eyes narrowed, reminiscently. "When I first saw the young lady," he said, "she took off her coat. Underneath she was wearing only a kimono. I'm inclined to think—" he looked at the producer—"that those hollows are only in her cheeks and neck. A few days' feeding will fill her out."

The manager grinned. "Send her around," he said. "If she's a professional, she might do, with a week's fattening. Anyhow, I'll have her sing and put on a few steps. This is only a summer show anyhow."

Morton thanked him, and rose to go. "I feel guilty, now, in taking Nona away from you," he said. "You've been so decent about this."

* * *

In great spirits, Morton telephoned his news to Nona.

"Send that girl over as soon as the old man is abroad in the morning," he said.

It was nearing midnight, and a cool breeze has sprung up. Swinging his cane, and whistling, Morton walked home. Audrey had arrived before him and was waiting for him in the drawing-room.

She kissed him, absent-mindedly, and stood twisting a ring upon her finger as he sank into his chair. Her brow was contracted, as if in puzzlement, and she stood looking at the floor until he broke the silence.

"Better tell daddy," he suggested. "What's wrong?"

She sighed. "Everything has been so queer, lately. Things used to go so smoothly, and I was happy, and now—well, I don't know."

She sighed again.

"Parrish up to something?" he asked.

She shook her head. "No, it wasn't Parrish."

He waited for her to continue. "Well, who was it then?" he inquired at last.

"Me, I guess. I think maybe I'm a fool." She pulled over a chair and sat close before him.

"Daddy, will you give me a thousand dollars, and not ask what it's for?"

His face did not change expression. "You have a big bank balance in Springfield. You could draw on that," he suggested.

"I haven't any check-book," she said. "You told me about having all that money, and I don't even know how to draw it out. Don't I have to be identified or something?"

"I'll give you a book of checks on that bank," he said. "Your signature is registered there. I had you sign some cards a long while ago. You've forgotten it."

He went into his study, and presently returned with a small pocket-folder, bearing the printed name of the Springfield bank.

"Fill out a check, sign it, and I'll cash it," he said. "Or if you like, I'll have you introduced tomorrow at my bank here in Kansas City, and they'll cash it for you."

He waited impassively for her to speak. At last, she looked up at him.

"Aren't you going to ask me what it's for?" she said.

"Do you want to tell me?"

"I think I do—I don't know. I don't seem able to talk about it now. Daddy, how early can I have the money?"

"When the bank opens in the morning. Say, a quarter after nine."

"I need the money at ten. So that's all right. Goodnight, dearest."

His forehead was knitted as he watched her ascend the stairs, rather wearily. He dropped his chin on his hand, and thought, until the great clock in the dining-room beyond chimed one. Then he arose, and with a little of the air that Audrey herself had worn, he trudged upstairs to bed.

* * *

Morton was at his office the next morning an hour earlier than usual. He summoned Parrish, and when the young man entered, the older man carefully closed the door.

"Were you with Miss Morton yesterday afternoon and last night?" he asked abruptly.

"Yes sir," said Parrish. "At least, I was until nine o'clock. Then she got angry at me, and told me to go away."

"Where were you?" Morton's voice was harsh.

"Down at the place where she's been dancing," said Parrish. "It's a hall where you pay a fee to the piano player, and something fothe use of the room. A dozen or more people work there every afternoon and night, practicing dance steps. She found it."

"Who else was there?"

"That sheik she hired as a dance partner," said the young man, dejectedly. "She said she was going to have another partner in a day or two, but she wanted to learn what she could from him."

"Well, go on," ordered Morton, as his secretary paused.

"Finally I wanted her to come away. I don't like that fellow! And she said she wouldn't, and we got into another quarrel." His voice dropped. "She had the proprietor bring another man and they put me outside. So I went home."

"And left her there," added Morton, coldly.

Parrish moved uneasily. "I know now I shouldn't have gone. I ought to have waited outside. But I was mad, and I thought she could go to thunder, for all of me."

Morton asked no further questions.

"Here's what I want you to do," he said. "Listen, and don't make any mistakes. Go out in the street, and get me a taxicab. Tell the driver I'll be down in a minute. Soon after I am gone, Miss Morton is coming here. She will be in my car, with the driver. She wants to be introduced at my bank, in order that she may cash a check. Go over with her in the car, and introduce her. But don't let the car start away from this building until you see me drawing near, in the taxi. Look at the cab carefully, so you'll recognize it from in front. I'll be cruising around and around the block. I don't want her to see me; but I do want to follow her. Understand?"

Parrish nodded, and started out on the first portion of his errand. He returned in a few minutes, and told Morton the taxi was waiting. The latter himself then left the office, and climbing into the waiting cab, gave the driver his directions.

It was no great while until Audrey appeared. The long town car drew up at the curb, and she tripped into the building. Soon she came out, with Parrish after her. He looked up and down the street, and then began deliberately ticing his shoelace. This done, he tied the other shoe.

Come on! Come on!" called Audrey from inside the car.

At this moment he caught sight of Morton's cab approaching from around the corner. There was no further delay, and the big automobile, with the small yellow taxi in pursuit, moved down the street.

There was a short stop at the bank, and the cars then renewed their progress. This time Parrish was not with Audrey, but stood, worriedly watching the two machines, until they were out of sight.

There was no difficulty in trailing Audrey's car through the heavy traffic. It was slower in making the corners, and in dodging other vehicles, than the short taxicab. The two cars, close together, proceeded about a mile, until Audrey's vehicle stopped at a corner. The girl alighted, and evidently directed the chauffeur to go on home. He saluted, and drove away, while the girl, after a moment's waitset out on foot.

Morton tapped on the glass, and the driver pulled open the window behind him. "Go slowly, and keep just behind that young lady in blue," Morton told him.

The man shut the window, and threw his car into low gear. Cars behind him honked a protest, but the taxi stolidly crawled on, keeping pace with the girl.

She turned two corners. Then she stopped. Morton rapped on the glass again, and signaled his driver to halt. With a quiet smile he paid the man, and added a heavy tip. He stepped into a doorway as Audrey turned into a building half-way down the block.

"A. Sunshine Productions," was the sign over the doorway.

A cigar store was on the corner, and Morton, stepping into it, sought the telephone booth.

Calling the number of Mr. Sunshine's office, he waited. There was a look of relief on his face as Mr. Sunshine's own voice answered.

"Abe," he said, "this is Harry Morton. Listen. There's a young lady in blue—light hair—in your outer office. She's either meeting somebody there, or waiting for somebody. I wish you would go out, and tell her to step into your inner room, where the piano is. And Abe—when she's in there, shut the door. Tell her you need the outer office—tell her anything, but get her inside QUICK. I'll be up right away and explain."

He cut off Abe's rapid protests by hanging up the receiver.

A minute later he was running up the stairs of the Sunshine establishment. Abe awaited him at the outer door, in a state of inner disturbance.

"Why should I mess up my rehearsals with this young woman?" he started to expostulate.

Morton cut him off.

"Is she inside there?"

"Yes. Sure."

"Then listen." Morton explained the situation quickly, while Sunshine listened with interested "Ahs" and "Would-you-think-it's?"

"What did she say when you asked her to step inside?" Morton asked.

"She said she was waiting for her dance partner. I know him—she told me his name. He's a low-life if there ever was one. He ain't here yet."

"Suppose we wait for him out here," Morton suggested.

Abe nodded, and the two sat by the doorway, watching. By chance, no young dancers were waiting in the reception office, and the men had the room to themselves.

"I'm surprised she should have a fellow like that dancing with her," said Abe. "I thought she was going to dance with Nona. Didn't you call me up and tell me that?"

"She's going to team with Nona," said Morton, "but she had met this fellow first."

There was a sound of footsteps on the stairs, and they fell silent. In a moment the door was pushed open.

"There he is now," said Abe

Morton sprang to his feet, as he saw the young man who entered.

"Great Scott!" he shouted. "You?"

With a quick leap, he placed himself between the newcomer and the door.

Posters Would Show Benefits of Prohibition

Placarding Country May Come About This Summer—U. S. Health Service Is Co-Operating.

Washington, May 1.—Placarding the country with posters showing the evils of bootleg liquors and the benefits of prohibition may come about this summer.

The United States Public Health Service is co-operating with the federal prohibition organization in an effort to draw up a poster that would be of value in warning the public against present day intoxicants.

Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Andrews, dry czar, has $50,000 appropriated two years ago, to spend in the billboard educational campaign. As soon as an appropriate poster is decided upon, arrangements will be made to placard every city in the country.

Andrews, it is understood, desires the posters to be based on facts. In addition to a dramatic picture, they will contain important information as to what bootleg liquor is and its effect on those who drink it.

Should the first poster receive favorable reaction from the public, Andrews plans to have a series of bulletins issued to inform citizens how bootleg rum is cut with poisonous concoctions and how beer is charged with chemicals detrimental to health, in order to give it a "kick."

Did Norsemen Discover America? Explorer McMillan Seeks to Prove They Did---500 Years Before Columbus

By NEA Service.

Chicago, May 1.—A thousand years ago, when this continent was hidden in darkness and the roads of the ocean led mostly to an unknown death in the shadow of the great waves, certain low, black ships with gaily painted sails crept westward from northern Europe to see what lay beyond the mysterious sunset rim of the Atlantic.

Just what happened to these hardy voyagers is not definitely known. It is believed, however, that they reached North America and established colonies there.

And now a twentieth century American, Donald B. MacMillan, is going north to find out. Within the coming year he expects to have definite proof that the Norsemen discovered and settled North American nearly 500 years before Columbus.

For Field Museum.

MacMillan leaves Wiscasset, Me., in his schooner Bowdoin on June 19. He is making his trip under the auspices of the Field Museum here, with Frederick Rawson, Chicago millionaire, financing it.

"Our operations will carry us to a point about 70 degrees north latitude," MacMillan says. "This will bring us about 300 miles beyond the arctic circle. For three months we will work in and about Labrador, Baffin Island, South Greenland and Ellesmere Island."

It is in this territory that MacMillan expects to find proof of early Norse settlers. Particularly is this true of Labrador.

The old Norse sagas tell of a land beyond the ocean that was colonized by daring voyagers. It is MacMillan's belief that this land included not only Greenland, which the Norsemen are known to have reached, but part of the North American continent.

He hopes not only to find such things as weapons, grave stones, buildings and the like; it is his belief that there exists hidden away in this wild land remnants of a tribe of Norse settlers; people who can be identified as actual descendants of these pre-Columbian colonists.

If he succeeds he will add one more bit of evidence to the great daring and skilled seamanship of those semi-barbaric sea rovers of the ninth and tenth centuries A. D.

The average Norse ship measured about 100 feet in length, bore a single mast and carried some twenty pairs of oars. The central part of the boat was decked, and on this deck the rowers sat, each on his own sea chest which contained his belongings. At each end of the boat there was a short raised deck, underneath which there were living quarters for the ship's officers.

The seamen worked and slept in the open. They could not "go below," as there was no space under the amidships deck. At night, or in stormy weather a sort of tent-like covering of canvas was stretched over them.

Couldn't Cook Food.

On long voyages everyone ate cold food; these early ships had no galleys and no cooks. The Norse sea captains had no compasses, steering solely by the stars.

These ships had high bows and sterns, carved usually into dragons heads and tails. The big mainsail was usually made of wool, generally gaily painted in big vertical stripes. Each rower went armed, hanging his shield over the side.

It was in such ships, frail and dangerous by modern standards, that the Norsemen crossed the Atlantic.

MacMillan, incidentally, plans to do a little northern Labrador colonizing on his own hook.

"For 18 years I've been running back and forth," he says, "but this summer I'm going to pick a site up there to build an entire community as a permanent base which I will keep open for five years. In 1927 I want to try again for the north pole and I want to make this base my headquarters, so that I can send back for supplies and still remain on the top of the world." Horses Not Entirely Replaced by Autos

Receipts Average More Than $200 Apiece During First Day of Sale—Top Still $1,600.

Mexico, May 1.—That horses have not been entirely replaced by automobiles is being proved here during the annual saddle horse sale by the spirited bidding for the horses placed on the block.

With the close of the first day's sale, receipts for sixty horses totaled $12,365, more than $200 each.

The highest price was paid by the Paul Brown & Sons stable of St. Louis who gave $1,000 for Jackie Highland, sired by Lord Highland and tracing lineage to Black Squirrel, one of the greatest all-time sires.

The top price of the sale is still held by Atterboy for which a Jefferson City firm paid $1,600.

Pike County Toll Roads Are Abolished

For First Time In More Than Fifty Years All Highways May Be Traversed Without Charges.

Louisiana, Mo., May 1.—Today for the first time in more than fifty years—all roads of Pike County may be traversed without toll.

The county court has ordered that all toll gates be removed May 1 affecting some roads which have exacted nickel or dime toll for more than 50 years.

Pike County was among the first in the state to build macadam and plank roads. The gravel road from Louisiana to Bowling Green was constructed in 1857.

Among the more important of the early roads was the one from Louisiana to Old Prairiesville, an extensive tobacco manufacturing point of 60 years ago.

The gravel road from Clarksville to Aberdeen and Paynesville was built in 1855 and has always been a toll road.

Advocates of the toll gate believe that its abolishment will lead to the deterioration of the old gravel roads while others believe that the roads should be maintained by taxes on gasoline and automobile licenses.

The house has agreed to senate amendments to the Rathbone bill, changing its provisions for a $50,000 appropriation to purchase the Lincolnia, to an authorization of a congressional commission to determine the value of the collection. S. T. C. PLANS JOINT DEBATES

FIVE STATE SCHOOLS MEET IN PENTANGULAR ARGUMENT.

TO BE HELD MAY 10

Each Teachers College to Send Affirmative and Negative Team To Debate Elsewhere.

Two teams of intercollegiate debaters are now working at the State Teachers College in preparation for the pentangular debate which will be held between the teachers college of Missouri on May 10. The plan is to have a debate at each college, with no teams debating at home. The following question will be debated at each school: Resolved, that Congress should provide a secretary of education in the President's cabinet.

The negative team composed of Floyd Cook and Paul Stone will debate against Cape Girardeau team at Kirksville, and Byron Beaver and Burdette Yeo, the affirmative team, will debate against Warrensburg at Springfield.

The debate here will be between the Springfield and Kirksville teams. The Kirksville debaters are two girls, Misses Ruth Curtis and Nat Rieger.

There will be five judges for each debate. The school which wins the decision of the most judges will be awarded a cup. Cape Girardeau was the winner last year.

The judges for the debate to be held here have not been selected. A list has been compiled and sent to the competing schools, but the five persons have not been named. They will be business and professional men of Maryville.

Thomas R. Wallin, debate coach at the College, said today that he was hoping for good results from the Maryville teams. The four men who will debate are those who were chosen as best in the elimination contests held several months ago. They are being drilled regularly for the debates and are rapidly rounding into top form.

The debates will all be held at the same time, and telegraphic results will determine the winners.

Atty.-Gen. Sargent in Anti-Trust Inquiries

Campaign To Lower Prices of Stable Commodities Results In 211 Investigations By Department.

Washington, May 1.—(United Press)—The campaign of Attorney General Sargent to lower prices of stable commodities by breaking "trusts" has resulted in 211 anti-trust investigations being conducted by justice department agents since last July.

Investigations of the department are now looking into the activities of sixty-five combines which might be operating in violation of the Sherman anti-trust law, it was said.

Since the campaign was opened, the government has obtained five dissolution consent decrees in six months. There are now pending in five federal courts thirty-one anti-trust suits and four cases are in the supreme court.

Among out-of-town visitors today were A. F. Stitts, Burlington Junction; Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Spoonemore, Parnell; Mr. and Mrs. I. D. Cornett, Massenea, Ia.; J. C. McConnell, Tarkio; and Hubert Garrett, Quitman.

Realistic Circus Parade Features Junior Red Cross Gifts Sent to Indian Schools

A large number of projects for exchange with Indian schools were received from Nodaway County schools this week by the Junior Red Cross headquarters here. They were from Barnard, Burlington Junction, Conception Junction, Parnell, Pickering, Ravenwood and the Washington and Douglass schools of Maryville.

The project which attracted most attention was a miniature street parade made by second grade pupils of the Ravenwood school. With wall board and coping saws, the second graders fashioned a bandwagon, drawn by a typical circus horse, lions, tigers, elephants, camels, bears and even a trick mule with a clown rider. The parade may be exhibited at the district convention of the Junior Red Cross, to be held at Kansas City. Miss Helen Shipps is the teacher of grade 2 at Ravenwood.

The Ravenwood school also sent a portfolio of health posters and health games which was exceptionally good. It was made by grades 3 and 4, of which Mrs. Inez Conn is teacher.

May Baskets With Flowers.

The primary department of the Conception Junction school sent seven May baskets filled with bright colored paper posies, a set of paper animal toys, a book of cutouts entitled "Our Helpers," and a book of patterns for window decorations. Miss Murl Pilcher is teacher of the primary department.

From the Conception Junction school also, came a health portfolio, a Japanese story with cutout illustrations and a stamp booklet. They were made by grades 3, 4 and 5, of which Miss Ledena Tennehill is teacher.

The Douglass school sent twelve window decorations, representing bowls of tulips, pansies and jonquils. They were so artistically made that it was hard to make visitors believe they were made by little boys.

The Washington school sent a bird book with stories about the different species to be found here and also a number of letters in a very attractive folder. They were made by grades 5-B and 7-B of which Miss Anna Mae Holt and Miss Grace Foster are teachers.

Portfolio Exchanged.

At Barnard a health portfolio was made for the Salt River Indian Day School of Scottsdale, Ariz., in return for a portfolio received from this school on March 11. The portfolio was made by grades 1 and 2, of which Miss Vada Cliser is teacher.

Another bird portfolio—and a very complete one—was consigned from grades 4 and 5 at Burlington Junction. Mrs. Leon Smith is the teacher.

Grades 2 and 3 at Burlington Junction sent patterns for window decoration for spring, summer, fall and winter. Miss Chlorin Kissee is the teacher.

Pickering sent twelve jointed dolls cleverly made of heavy paper. They were made by the primary pupils, taught by Miss Hulda Lunte.

A Letter From Japan.

Grades 7 and 8 at Parnell received a letter from Kawamoto School, Shimanecken, Japan, in answer to one sent to this school some time ago. Mrs. Iva Christensen is teacher of grades 7 and 8. The letter follows:

Shimanecken, Japan,
Kawamoto School,
March 18, 1926.

Parnell School,
Parnell, Missouri.
Dear friends:

We were so glad to hear from you. Your letter is a most interesting one your school and also the place where you live.

The Junior Red Cross was organized last year and all the students above the fifth grade are members of it. We have about 300 members and we all enjoy the work very much.

Although our town is located in the center of the county, it is very small. There is a high school, a police station, a bank, a post office and a few stores. Our school is on the outskirts of town. We have about 700 students.

There is a big play ground at school, and we play basketball almost every day on it. Students like to play this game more than any other one.

It is still cold here, but it is not so far from cherry blossom time. We are waiting for spring.

We all send best regards and wish you great success in the Junior Red Cross.

Your Japanese friend,

Closing Grain Review.

Chicago, May 1.—Grain prices closed fractionally higher on the Chicago Board of Trade today.

Wheat closed fractionally higher, particularly in the May delivery. Trading in this grain was somewhat nervous but heavy eastern buying of July and continued unfavorable reports from the Northwest helped steady prices. About 10,000 bushels of wheat was delivered on May contracts.

Corn closed fractionally higher in all deliveries. Trade was comparitively light with no particular trend.

Oats closed fractionally higher in all deliveries. Trading in this grain was sharp.

Provisions closed higher.

FARM GLIMPSES

Robert Patton, southwest of Maryville, is razing his old house and will erect on the old site a modern 5-room bungalow with large closets and pantry. Mr. Patton said that it had to be remodeled and then it wouldn't be a home that just suited them so he is tearing the old one down and erect a new one. The Logan boys of Maryville have the contract.

D. O. Belt, south of town, is breaking up a field of clover and will put it in corn. He says it is breaking up fine and will not be much trouble to get it in condition for planting.

Mark DeBord, northwest of Barnard, is going to put out 100 acres of corn and so far has done all the work getting it ready for planting. He says he will hire a man about a month through the plowing season.

Boone Clark, northwest of Barnard, has a load of fine white hogs that will soon be ready for the market. He also has a fine bunch of winter pigs that are running on grass. He says a little later on he will crowd them for the market. Boone raises the big Chester White hogs and is making a success of them.

J. R. Wells, southwest of Maryville, has several new movable hoghouses for his fine brood sows. J. R. says it pays to look carefully after the pigs at the present price of hogs.

J. W. Clayton, northwest of Barnard, lost a valuable 4-year-old mule this week by blood poisoning, caused by a collar boil.

O. M. Crawford, northwest of Barnard, sent three truck loads of extra finished hogs to the St. Joseph market this week and was well pleased with the price received. Mr. Crawford has a fine field of oats that are looking green. He will put out 100 acres of corn and with the aid of his two young boys will put it in and tend to the plowing of it.

S. J. Miller, northwest of Barnard, built a new barn which will enable him to shelter his stock and make plenty of room for hay and grain.

Frank Helzer, northwest of Barnard, is completing a new modern 8-room house on his farm and when completed will be one of the fine homes of the county. It gives a look of prosperity around that fine farm of Frank's.

William Lyle, southeast of Skidmore, broke up a field of sod this spring and has it in fine condition for corn. He will commence planting the first of the week.

J. E. Shinabarger, southeast of Maryville, commenced planting corn Thursday. He thinks the ground is in fair condition for planting.

Faye Corrough, northwest of Arkoe, has a large bunch of early spring lambs and expects to push them along for an early market.

Charles Barmann, northwest of Arkoe, had several teams in the field this week getting his ground in condition for planting. He thinks a great many made a mistake in not working their ground enough before seeding.

Hiram Montgomery and son of Skidmore were in Maryville yesterday.

8 Records Fall In Track Meet at Kirksville; Bearcats Third

The State Teachers College Bearcats stepped into rather fast company yesterday in the triangular track and field meet with the Warrensburg Mules and the Kirksville Bulldogs at Kirksville. Warrensburg won the meet with 89½ points, Kirksville was second with 44 points, and Maryville was third with 30½ points.

Eight records were smashed in the meet. All of them were broken by Warrensburg men. The mark in the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, half mile, 2-mile, discus, shot, and both relays fell. These statments are based on a telephone conversation with Coach Paul Jones last night. There is a chance, of course, that an error might be made, as the connection with Kirksville was poor.

Kennedy of Warrensburg, with three firsts, one second, and a tie for third, was high-point man of the meet. He also broke two records.

Maryville won but one first place. Ungles stepped the quarter in 52.5 seconds, one tenth slower than the record, for first place. Joy was second in the javalin, Wakely was second in the pole vault, and John Smith was second in the half mile and 2-mile. The rest of the Maryville points were scattered thirds and fourths.

The speed of the meet makes the local showing far better than the score indicates. With the exception of the javalin, every event was extremely fast. The high hurdles were one-tenth of a second slower than the record, the same is true of the low sticks, the pole vault was within 2 inches of the record, the high jump was within three-quarters of an inch of the high mark, and the broad jump was less than a foot short.

The Bearcats will return to Maryville at 7:42 o'clock tonight. All are in good condition following the meet, with the exception of Robey, who strained a tendon in his lap of the half-mile relay. He was able to walk last night, however.

The summary:

100-yard dash: Brown, Warrensburg, first; Humphrey, Warrensburg, second; Ungles, Maryville, third; Robey, Maryville, fourth; Time, 9.9 seconds. New Record.

220-yard dash: Humphrey, Warrensburg, first; Brown, Warrensburg, second; McKenna, Kirksville, third; O'Banion, Maryville, fourth; time, 22.5 seconds. New record.

Unusual Find at Golf Links at Tarkio

(Shenandoah Sentinel-World).

The finding of a dead deer on the golf links at Tarkio has been a subject of much comment, because of the scarcity of deer in northern Missouri.

George Luckhardt while inspecting the links saw the body of a dead animal lying in the ditch near the seventh green. The carcass proved to be that of a young deer.

The animal had evidently been wounded and after jumping the fence to get to the water was too weak to get out again, and either died of starvation or the effects of the gun wounds. Several years ago several head of deer were turned loose in Gentry County and it is supposed one of them strayed into the Tarkio neighborhood.

Will Ascertain Real Status of Students

Whether Young Men and Women Are As Bad As Pictured Will Be One Question In M. U. Survey.

Columbia, Mo., May 1 (UnitedPress). —Whether the students of today are as they are pictured in popular jazz novels will be one of a number of perplexing questions which will be answered by a survey conducted by various organizations at the University of Missouri.

Among the questions which the students are being asked are:

Do you object to petting, and if so, why, and do you object to drinking?

Do you dance, and if so why? How many dances do you attend each month?

How many religious meetings do you attend each month and do you enjoy them? How often do you attend teas and do you go for enjoyment or social obligations?

How often do you go to card parties and do you gamble?

What kind of movies do you like? Love Stories? Dreams? Comedies or tragedies? Do you like to kiss and be kissed? If not, state why.

Students are not required to sign their names, and consequently it is believed that the results will be more reliable than those of similar questionnaires to which students in the past have been required to sign their names. Tabulation of the answers is in progress and announcement of the results is expected in a few days.
